

GTA positions normally provide part of a graduate student's guaranteed funding in return for teaching-related activities as specified in the GTA collective agreement [article 17.03].

Any graduate student who is offered a GTA as part of such a package and declines for non-program related reasons (e.g. because they have chosen to complete their program in another location, or they have external funding and prefer not to teach) is thereby waiving their claim to that portion of their guaranteed funding for that academic year.

All other funding will remain in place and will be stated clearly in the student's funding letter.
